AUSTRALIAN TURF DISCIPLINE.

A signally effective and correct punishment for having a horse pulled in a race or series of races was administered in Australia last November by the officials of the Victoria Racing Club. A high-class handicap horse, Parthenopaues, had failed in both the Caulfield and Melbourne Cups. He then was started for the Spring Handicap at the Victoria meeting, and going to the post at a long price, was never conspicuous in the race. He was in the Final Handicap, run within a few days subsequent to the Spring Handicap, and notwithstanding the fact that the handicapper, dissatisfied with his previous essay, had materially increased his weight, was heavily and persistently backed to beat practically the same field to which he was "nowhere" in the Spring Handicap. He won with astounding ease, and at once there was an investigation that resulted in the disqualification of the trainer, A. Ferguson, and the jockey, P. Guinane, "during the pleasure of the committee." The horse, it should be mentioned, was the property of S. Allen, one of the leading and best known bookmakers of Australia. The subsequent proceedings are thus described in the Melbourne Age:

"Up to this point the owner or owners of the horse stood exempt from punishment; but the V. R. C. stipendiary Steward, Mr. C. F. Fraser, assisted by Racecourse Detective Wright, set to work to discover whether a statement that had been made by Allen that he did not back the horse in the Final Handicap was true or untrue, and whether he and others shared the responsibility, along with the jockey and the trainer, for the pulling of the horse on the Thursday. The inquiries by these officers of the club brought out most interesting disclosures. Information came to hand which greatly magnified the gravity of the case, and the V. R. C. committee summoned S. Allen, the nominal owner, and T. Arnfield, a suspected part owner, to stand their trial.

"Numerous persons who were known to have backed the horse were called by the committee on Monday to testify with regard to their operations. These were questioned by Allen and Arnfield as to whether they (the witnesses) had acted as commissioners for them (Allen and Arnfield), and they denied that they had done so; but the committee saw reason to accept this disclaimer with considerable reserve. Being bookmakers, moreover, Allen and Arnfield were able to make a huge profit by laying heavily against the other horses, and this the committee found they did, which proved a rather unfortunate disclosure for the accused pair.

"As if to emphasize the discomfiture of their position, the jockey came forward with an unqualified confession, which gave the inquiry a new and sensational turn. He had failed to attend the inquiry on Monday, and when he was asked on Tuesday by the V. R. C. officials to be present yesterday, he decided to do so. In the meantime he consulted a solicitor, with the object of preparing a sworn declaration telling the story of his own guilt and the guilt of others. He was impelled to do this, it appears, on account of the fact that the others had failed to meet his proposals as to monetary support after his disqualification. In a word, he came to the conclusion that to save themselves the other three—Allen, Arnfield and Ferguson—were inclined to sacrifice him, and he therefore determined to make a clean breast of it, and place himself in the hands of the committee. The statement he made was most ample and definite, and the committee was impressed with its truthfulness. The contents were not definitely disclosed to the press, but in its general effect Guinane accused the three others, and more particularly Ferguson, of fraudulent practices. He says he pulled the horse on the Thursday because Ferguson told him to do so. He found the horse going so well at the abattoirs that thereafter he ran as wide as he thought he safely could. Further statements he made indicated that the 'roping' was done with the connivance of Allen and Arnfield.

"Cross-examination by the bookmakers and the trainer did not, in the estimation of the committee, shake the jockey's story.

"Allen declared that he was the sole owner of the horse, and that Arnfield had not a partnership interest in the animal; but on that point the committee were dubious, the opinion being that the evidence tended to connect Arnfield with the horse to the extent of having a voice in the question whether he was to run to win or not.

"When the evidence had been completed the committee deliberated for about an hour, those who took part being Messrs. S. Miller, chairman; C. M. Lloyd, W. H. Croker, E. Manifold, P. Russell, R. Power, A. McCracken and F. Madden. The verdict that was read by the chairman to the accused quartette was as follows:

"It having been proved to the satisfaction of the committee that Samuel Allen and Thomas Arnfield have been guilty of fraudulent practice with regard to the running of the horse Parthenopaues during the recent spring meeting of the V. R. C., the said Samuel Allen and Thomas Arnfield are hereby disqualified for life, and the said horse Parthenopaues is also disqualified for life. The disqualification already imposed on Andrew Ferguson and Patrick Guinane during pleasure will remain.

Commenting on this case editorially, the latest issue of The Spirit of the Times says with the hearty endorsement of DAILY RACING FORM:

"The recent sensational Parthenopaues case, the account of which was published in The Spirit of January 8, might be carefully read by the Stewards of the Jockey Club. The Stewards of the Victoria Racing Club, at whose course the in and out running of Parthenopaues occurred, were not satisfied, as is frequently the case in this country, with the disqualifications of the horse, jockey and trainer, but probed the matter to its uttermost depth, succeeding finally in proving two prominent Victorian bookmakers the real instigators of the fraud upon the public.

In this country it happens all too frequently that some poor, miserable half-witted jockey, barely more than a child in years, suffers alone the penalty for a crime in which he was merely the agent of the real criminal, who continues his career of crime unscathed. The Australian stipendiary Steward, an official in the necessity of whose existence The Spirit continues a strong believer, notwithstanding the apparent contrary belief of the Jockey Club, aided by detectives, continued the investigation, and finally succeeded in bringing to justice the perpetrators of the fraud as well as their paid agents, the jockey and trainer of Parthenopaues. The case illustrates the necessity of eternal and unremitting vigilance upon the part of the Stewards and the advisability of a most searching investigation in each case where fraud is suspected. The Australasian Stewards have set the racing officials of the entire world a most excellent example in this case."

GOSSIP OF THE TURF.

Tully Coulter's Deceiver—Ida Walton colt Trickster died of lock-jaw on the Headley farm, formerly La Belle, in Kentucky, a few days ago, after being gelded. Six of the Coulter two-year-olds at Col. W. S. Barnes' Melbourne Stud farm and four at Louisville under Capt. Widener's hand are doing well. In a personal letter from Oakland Mr. Coulter says: "It looks as if the cardinal and white would be pretty fair in 1898. Daily Racing Form, Bow & Arrow and Official are all good and will earn some attention at an early date."

Gossiping of California and California horses, Mr. Coulter says:

"I paid a visit to the Macdonough rancho at Menlo Park two weeks ago Sunday and saw Ormonde, St. Carlo and the broodmares and yearlings. Ormonde is the grandest looking thoroughbred I ever saw. St. Carlo is a fine looking stallion, but has not the finish of his brother—Prince of Monaco—at Col. W. S. Barnes' Melbourne Stud in Kentucky. The yearlings are all fillies—about a dozen—four by Ormonde and the rest by St. Carlo.

"St. Carlo is the most popular sire in California and his children are all winners and good racehorses. I should think that Col. Barnes would feel very proud of his young horse—the Prince.

"A letter from Lexington tells me that Redskin is wintering well. The old rogue is a great racehorse—when he behaves himself."

A dispatch from New York credits Marcus Daly with saying: "Hamburg's forelegs were not sound at the close of last season's racing. If he stands training this year he should capture some of the rich 3-year-old stakes. Should he break down, however, he will be sent to England and put in the stud there."

Whether Mr. Daly said anything of the sort or not, there is still an interesting suggestion involved in the paragraph quoted. For some time past English turf writers of note have advised their breeders to seek for valuable expatriated strains of blood in Australia and "The States" and bring them home again to assist in maintaining the imperiled supremacy of the British thoroughbred. The advice is not altogether unheeded, as the purchase of such Australian stars as Carbine, Carnage and others, for stud service in England demonstrates and it may be that such a fine example of the stout blood of Glencoe as Hamburg is also destined to enrich and fortify fashionable English thoroughbred strains.

In this country we have representatives of the male line of Glencoe in hearty, vigorous and valued abundance. In England they have only the female line, but what a tribute to the excellence of Glencoe as a progenitor of equine greatness it is. When Glencoe was brought to this country in 1836 he left in England a daughter, a little mare called Pocahontas, and to her the English stud book traces such gems as her son Stockwell, the "Emperor of Stallions," his son Doncaster, his grand son Ben d'Or, his great grand son Ormonde and a veritable host of others besides practically as great and famous as these mighty ones.

With the well comprehended lesson of the inestimable value of that one little Glencoe mare in mind, English breeders would no doubt welcome the advent of such a splendid direct male line representative as Hamburg and accord him the choicest of mates. No American breeder would doubt the great worth of the results to follow.

The old-time trainer, Hardy B. Durham, has some likely 2-year-olds in training at his place near Lexington and these are their names:

SINGERLY SUCCEEDS BARKSDALE.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 19.—A committee of horsemen investigated the Singerly track and found it to be in much better condition than Barksdale and the racing scene will shift to that track tomorrow. Jockeys were not permitted to carry a whip today, as the numerous falls lately have been charged to that account. There were no falls today.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

The Coney Island Jockey Club will have a new club house built and ready for use by the time the June meeting begins. The structure will be a handsome one and will have a 75-foot front and a depth of 74 feet. A balcony admitting of four rows of seats will extend around the entire second floor, with a restaurant and lounging room within easy reach. Other features of the building will be a veranda equipped with easy chairs and refreshment tables, a jockeys' room and weighing room connected, offices for the stewards, the secretary and treasurer, bath rooms and cloak rooms.

A correspondent of the American Horse Breeder writes a long article in opposition to betting being allowed on trotting tracks and as one of his reasons says he knows of a young man who went to the races and lost all his summers' wages in bets and had to borrow money to go home on. We know of a California fool who came to San Francisco and blew in his summer wages on buggy rides and ice cream at church fairs. You can't shorten the fool crop by stopping up the holes where they throw their money. There are always others.—Breeder and Sportsman.

When Buena Ventura won her first race at Oakland, President Tom Williams telegraphed congratulations to Gen. W. H. Jackson for having bred the first 2-year-old winner of the year.

Gus Bluhm, the Chicago bookmaker, is credited with being a heavy winner at San Francisco, being said to have cleared up $10,000 Wednesday and Thursday of last week.

Start fair. Won in a hard drive. Aluminum just lasted long enough. He is not a good actor and doesn't relish a route. He is good though and was well ridden and lucky. Brambella seemed best. The filly was badly handled, cut off at the start and on the back stretch and was closing fast at the end. Both Monitor and Blue Bell are sprinters and cowards. Einstein is best on a fast track. Our Climate is a sturdy horse who will execute in jumping races.

Start good. Won in a gallop. Catawba was best, well ridden and met with no obstacle. Blarneystone runs best on mellow going and is a sprinter. But he is game. Imperious does his best in mud. He likes a route. Was away poorly and made up ground steadily. He was cut off at start and on first turn. Hermoso will not go a route. But he is a game colt. Rosormonde was short and appears to keenly favor hard going.
